Occupational Employment and Wages for Teachers in Connecticut's Metropolitan Areas-May 2013

The six metropolitan areas in Connecticut had annual wages significantly above the national average for secondary, middle, and elementary school teachers, the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today. Regional Commissioner Deborah A. Brown noted that Bridgeport-Stamford-Norwalk was the highest-paying metropolitan area in the state for secondary and middle school teachers. Nationwide, the average (mean) annual wage was $58,260 for secondary school teachers, $56,630 for middle school teachers, and $56,320 for elementary school teachers. (See table A. For comprehensive definitions of metropolitan areas in Connecticut, please see Technical Note.)

Wages for secondary school teachers in metropolitan areas in Connecticut

As noted, Bridgeport, at $72,340, was the highest-paying area in Connecticut for secondary school teachers. New Haven and Hartford were also among the higher-paying areas for secondary school teachers at $69,380 and $69,160, respectively. Wages in the state’s three other metropolitan areas ranged from $68,510 to $66,600.

Wages for middle school teachers in metropolitan areas in Connecticut

All six metropolitan areas in Connecticut had wages for middle school teachers that exceeded the national average by more than $10,000. Bridgeport ($72,690) was the highest-paying metropolitan area in the state for this occupation. Wages in the state’s five other metropolitan areas ranged from $70,090 in Danbury to $67,700 in Waterbury.

Wages for elementary school teachers in metropolitan areas in Connecticut

Bridgeport ($70,750) and Hartford ($69,440) were among the higher-paying areas for elementary school teachers in the state. Wages in the state’s four remaining metropolitan areas ranged from $68,800 to $60,800.

These statistics are from the Occupational Employment Statistics (OES) survey, a federal-state cooperative program between BLS and State Workforce Agencies, in this case, the Connecticut Department of Labor.

The OES wage data for secondary, middle, and elementary school teachers in the state and metropolitan areas were compared to their respective national averages based on statistical significance testing. Only those occupations with wages above or below the national wage after testing for significance at the 90-percent confidence level meet the criteria.

NOTE: A value that is statistically different from another does not necessarily mean that the difference has economic or practical significance. Statistical significance is concerned with the ability to make confident statements about a universe based on a sample. It is entirely possible that a large difference between two values is not significantly different statistically, while a small difference is, since both the size and heterogeneity of the sample affect the relative error of the data being tested.

Technical Note

The Occupational Employment Statistics (OES) survey is a semiannual mail survey measuring occupational employment and wage rates for wage and salary workers in nonfarm establishments in the United States. Guam, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands are also surveyed, but their data are not included in the national estimates. OES estimates are constructed from a sample of about 1.2 million establishments. Each year, forms are mailed to two semiannual panels of approximately 200,000 sampled establishments, one panel in May and the other in November. May 2013 estimates are based on responses from six semiannual panels collected over a 3-year period: May 2013, November 2012, May 2012, November 2011, May 2011, and November 2010. The overall national response rate for the six panels is 75.3 percent based on establishments and 71.6 percent based on employment. For more information about OES concepts and methodology, go to www.bls.gov/news.release/ocwage.tn.htm.

The OES survey provides estimates of employment and hourly and annual wages for wage and salary workers in 22 major occupational groups and 821 detailed occupations for the nation, states, metropolitan statistical areas, metropolitan divisions, and nonmetropolitan areas. In addition, employment and wage estimates for 94 minor groups and 458 broad occupations are available in the national data. OES data by state and metropolitan/nonmetropolitan area are available from www.bls.gov/oes/current/oesrcst.htm and www.bls.gov/oes/current/oesrcma.htm, respectively.

The May 2013 OES estimates are based on the 2010 Standard Occupational Classification (SOC) system and the 2012 North American Industry Classification System (NAICS). Information about the 2010 SOC is available on the BLS website at www.bls.gov/soc and information about the 2012 NAICS is available at www.bls.gov/bls/naics.htm.
